When one mountain won't do, head on over to Killington. It's seven mountains are sure to do the trick. Killington is the largest destination resort in the eastern United States. The K-1 Gondola travels 1.25 miles to the top of 4,241 ft Killington Peak, the highest point in New England reached by an aerial lift. Check out the stats this place is as big as a lot of western resorts.

It has super equipment, great snowmaking and terrain that most intermediate skiers can enjoy without too much difficulty. Most of the runs are black diamonds with only a smattering of intermediate blues. The green beginner trails, (one of them is 10 miles long!) serve as main highways or interconnects to the more challenging terrain. It is important to know their names and where they go.

On the famed access road the nightlife is wild. Make sure you visit the Wobbly Barn for a big steak or BBQ, and dance off the extra calories all night long.
